University of Delhi

International Hindi Conference on
Hindi: Global Perspectives – Language, Literature and Translation.

The Translation and Translation Studies Centre of Indraprastha College for Women, University of Delhi, in collaboration with New York University, South Asian Language, Programs and Columbia University, Hindi-Urdu Language Program is happy to announce the International Hindi Conference to be held on January 9 – 11, 2020 at Indraprastha College for Women, Delhi, India. The conference is supported by Indian Council for Cultural Relations (ICCR).

The study of Hindi language and literature has taken huge leaps forward in the global context. Several universities all over the world are engaging deeply with the changing pedagogies of teaching-learning processes of the language. Transformations in the language itself as well as its cultural forms, refracted through global media platforms among global audiences which includes the diaspora, make it imperative to pause, review and reflect on the changes that confront the world of Hindi.

This conference aims to explore and understand the facilitation of the global focus on Hindi Studies and the changing paradigms of how literature in Hindi is viewed, read and consumed internationally. It also aims to address the role of translation and translation studies in bridging the gaps between World Literature and Hindi Literature.
